MISCELLANEOUS.

"German Syrup"

We have selected two or three lines from letters freshly received from parents who have given German Syrup to their children in the emergencies of Croup. You will credit these, because they come from good, substantial people, happy in finding what so many families lack—a medicine containing no evil drug, which mother can administer with confidence to the little ones in their most critical hours, safe and sure that it will carry them through.

Ed. L. Williams, of Alma, Neb. I give it to my children when troubled with Croup and never saw any preparation act like it. It is simply miraculous.

Fully one-half of our customers are mothers who use Boschee's German Syrup among their children. A medicine to be successful with the little folks must be a treatment for the sudden and terrible foes of childhood, whooping cough, croup, diphtheria and the dangerous inflammations of delicate throats and lungs. @

A HOLY PLACE IS THE HEARTHSTONE.

A holy place is the hearthstone, Where loved ones are gathered round, Where mothers, wives and sisters dear And brothers and friends are found. A holy place is the hearthstone, Home's innermost shrine is there, Laden with blessed benison And hallowed by loving prayer.

A holy place is the hearthstone, What clustering joys abide Where the cradle of our infancy Was rocked by a mother's side. A holy place is the hearthstone, Where childhood's pattering feet Go glancing in shade and sunshine To the music of pleasure's beat.

A holy place is the hearthstone, Where the youth have wooed and won, And wed and gone to the battle Of life with full armor on. A holy place is the hearthstone, Where manhood has settled down With blessings blossoming round him, And love for a priceless crown.

A holy place is the hearthstone, Whence the old and young have gone To rest from their weary labor, When the burden of life was done. And oh, from the holy hearthstone, When parted from those we love, May we go to meet by the hearthstone Of our Father's house above! —New York Ledger.

A Cornish Custom.

Of the more modern and wholly quaint and innocent customs of Cornwall a few pleasant illustrations may be cited. The fish wives of ancient St. Ives are an incorrigible lot. Should you visit the town at the height of pilchard fishing, and enter the dark cellars where hundreds of women and girls are engaged in "bulking," or salting, the fish, scores of grinning Amazons will rush at you, and the fleetest one will daub your shoes generously with the odorous fish oil which has drained from the piles of curing fish. This is called "wiping the shoe," and if you do not respond with tribute of at least a half crown for luck of the "fair maids that feed and clothe the poor"—that is, the pilchard-fishes—your subsequent venches will certainly cost you a new suit of clothing. The same custom, save that the daubing is done with "miner's clay," prevails within the mines, where the stranger is expected to pay something for his initiation into their mysteries.—Edgar L. Wakeman in New York Sun.

The Barber Was Ready.

An old veteran told this as happening at Savannah during the war: A young officer, who was pretty much of a bully, stopped in at a tonsorial saloon. Drawing his sword he ordered the barber to shave him, at the same time warning him that if he cut his face or drew a drop of blood he would kill him when he got up. The operation was performed without accident. Before he went out, however, the bully asked the artist if he was not very much frightened while he was doing the work. The barber smiled. "Not in the slightest," he replied; "for if I had accidentally drawn a drop of blood I would have cut your throat from ear to ear before you could have moved."—Atlanta Constitution.

The Very First American Railway.

The first railroad built in the United States was three miles in length, extending from the granite quarries at Quincy, Mass., to the Neponset river. It was commenced in 1826 and finished in 1827. The gauge was five feet. The rails were pine, a foot thick, covered with hard oak, which was in turn strapped with iron. In January, 1827, a short coal road was completed from the mines to Mauch Chunk, Pa. The rails on this road were also of timber, with flat iron bars. The first locomotive for use on a railroad was invented by Richard Trevithick in 1801, and first tried in Wales.

George Stephenson built the first really successful locomotive in 1814, and tested it upon the Killingwood road in the north of England. The first locomotive for actual service constructed in America was E. I. Miller's "Best Friend," built for the South Carolina Railroad company in 1830. Peter Cooper built a little experimental locomotive early in 1830, before the "Best Friend" was completed.—St. Louis Republic.

Thanked Instead of Reprimanding Him.

Sir Robert Wright, appointed to the seat on the bench of the high court of justice left vacant by the death of Baron Huddleston, on one occasion, while at Oxford, was summoned before the Dean of Balliol for the purpose of being censured. The dean was exceedingly careful of his dignity, as well as of his personal appearance. Wright looked the dean well up and down while the latter was delivering his lecture, and finally interrupted him, in the middle of one of his most telling periods, by remarking confidentially, "I know you will excuse me, sir, but I think you cannot be aware that your waistcoat is unbuttoned." Completely nonplused, the dean was only able to stammer out: "Oh, thank you, Mr. Wright. So very kind of you, I am sure. Good morning, good morning!"—San Francisco Argonaut.

Why Fowls Welcome Fair Weather

The deprivation of light, which affects all animals so much, is particularly depressing to birds; and this may be ascribed to their unwillingness to move in the frost fog. Naturally they are the first to welcome its departure. As the mist lifts from a Scotch hillside the cock begins to crow, and in the English fields the rooks caw, and the small birds twitter and the cocks crow in the barnyards. These sounds are as certain to proclaim the lifting of the fog as the "London cries" to begin when the rain stops.—Spectator.

DR. T. W. HING,

(Late of Virginia City, Nevada.)

English and Chinese Physician

Surgeon.

An article from Senator Stewart, which appeared in the Washington Post of May 1st, is printed in the JOURNAL this morning. It is logical and to the point and embodies the principles for which the friends of silver have been and are contending, and it is hoped will contend, until the coinage of silver as well as gold shall be free at the Mints of the United States, as they had been from the establishment of the Mint in 1792 until the passage of the demonetization act of 1873.

The Senator says the money question is the most important "now agitating the public mind, and will be the live issue in every campaign until it is determined whether this country is to be governed by free men or by a gold aristocracy, and the truth of the assertion is not doubted. It will overshadow all other measures in the next Congress, and unless it is settled by the passage of a free coinage act, will be the principal issue in the next campaign and may cause a new alignment of parties.

The real friends of silver have been so often deceived by the sophistries of politicians and the illusive financial planks of party platforms, framed to deceive, that they will not be satisfied with anything less than an unqualified declaration for free coinage, and the party that does not favor such a measure cannot expect their support. The farmers from the Ohio west to the Rocky Mountains and south to the Gulf of Mexico, demand it, and it is scarcely possible that a majority of the people of the mining States will uphold a party that opposes it.

The free coinage of silver would enhance the value of the metal over thirty cents an ounce, and give it a fixed value. This would create a demand for labor and the products of the farm, increase taxable property, restore prosperity and double the population of the State within a year. Those who prefer such a condition of affairs to the existing depression will not support party or candidate that is not unequivocally pledged to free coinage, as the welfare of the State is of greater importance to its inhabitants than the political complexion of the man who appoints the few, very few Federal officers in Nevada.

JUDGE REAGAN'S SUCCESSOR.

Everybody knew Judge Reagan, if not personally, at least by reputation, and every friend of silver regretted his resignation as United States Senator, as he had always been an unwavering advocate of free coinage, but few, outside of Texas, even heard of Horace Chilton, who has been appointed to succeed him. Senator Chilton, when sixteen years of age, became an apprentice in a printing office and was paid one dollar a week. After serving a year he asked for an increase of wages. His request being denied he left the printing office and shortly afterwards commenced studying law in the office of a leading attorney. Though only thirty-eight years of age he is one of the leading lawyers of Texas. He is an eloquent and forcible speaker, popular with the masses, and will be the first native of the Lone Star State to sit in the United States Senate.

Judge Waterman in the Appellate Court of Illinois has decided that a combination of men to organize a corner in grain is unlawful, by preventing the free selling and purchase of a necessary of life, thereby creating an artificial scarcity and forcing the payment of high prices by those compelled to buy, which is against public policy.

The value of sealskins shipped from Alaska to London during the twenty-three years of American occupancy foots up nearly $33,000,000, while the total value of all other products during the same period does not quite reach $30,000,000, of which more than one-half or $16,000,000, represents furs of various kinds, chief among which is that of the sea otter.

General Butler is determined to get even on the United States District Judge who ordered him ejected from the Court-room, pending the trial of Mrs. Claretta Johnson. He made a motion for a writ of error to the Supreme Court of the United States in the case and it was granted.

Senator Stewart continues to throw hot shot into the gold bug camp. It is evident that he will not support Harrison for President should he veto the free coinage bill which the next House of Representatives is virtually obligated to pass.

The Senate Committee on Finance, appointed to inquire into the workings of the new tariff, is holding a session behind closed doors in New York City.

One of Henry Clay's descendants has been sentenced in Kentucky to four years imprisonment for forgery.

The Charleston Will Pursue the Itata. SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The Alta-California has positive information that the U. S. S. Charleston will sail for San Diego to-morrow in pursuit of the Chilean ship Itata. Secretary Tracy telegraphed special orders to-day, and the Charleston left Mare Island to-day and anchored off San Francisco. Instead of taking her usual anchorage, she went behind Goat Island out of sight. Her ostensible purpose in coming down is to go outside and try her guns. The officers and men have been ordered to be on board at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning.

News of Importance From Home and Abroad.

The Behring Sea Question.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Another note from Secretary Blaine to Sir Julian Pauncefote under date of April 14th, is made public. It says in part: "Modifications which Lord Salisbury suggests in questions for arbitration do not wholly meet the views of the President but the President changes the text of two questions in such a manner it is hoped will result in an agreement between the two governments."

The six questions for arbitration are then cited, as is also Lord Salisbury's dispatch of February 21, in which he makes a declaration that it is now quite clear that the advisers of the President do not claim the Behring sea as mare clausum, and indeed repudiate that contention in express terms. Mr. Blaine says Lord Salisbury's expression is in a form to imply that the United States has hitherto been resting its contentions upon the fact that the Behring sea was mare clausum. If that was the intention it would have been well for his Lordship to specify wherein the United States ever made the assertion. The United States has at no time rested its argument solely on the ground mentioned, and this Government regrets that Lord Salisbury should have so misapprehended the American position as to limit its basis of right in the Behring sea to the Ukase of 1821. The United States has, among other grounds, insisted, without recurring to any of its inherited and superior rights in Alaska, that this Government has full authority for going beyond the three mile line in case of proved necessity as Great Britain possesses.

Mr. Blaine then calls attention to the fact that two or three instances have already been cited by him, in which Great Britain exercises control beyond the three mile limit, and says they have so far failed to secure comment or explanation. Mr. Blaine then cites another case in which the British Parliament enacted a law two years ago, to control the body of water 2,700 square miles in extent, on the coast of Scotland and directing that certain methods of fishing shall not be used within that great body of water.

Mr. Blaine adds: "If Great Britain may thus control an area of 2,700 square miles of ocean on the coast of Scotland, why may not the United States prescribe the space around the Pribiloff islands in which similar prohibitions may be enforced?"

Mr. Blaine in closing his letter says: "The Government of the United States holds that the ownership of the islands upon which the seals breed, that the habit of the seals in regularly resorting thither and rearing their young thereon, that their going out from the islands in search of food and regularly returning thereto, and all facts and incidents of their relation to the islands gives to the United States a property interest therein, that this property interest was claimed and exercised by Russia, that England recognized this property interest so far as recognition is implied by abstaining from all interference with it during the whole period of Russia's ownership, and during the first nineteen years of the sovereignty of the United States. It is yet to be determined whether the lawless intrusion of Canadian vessels in 1886 and subsequent years has changed the law and equity of the case heretofore prevailing."

The President in Oregon.

PENDLETON, Or., May 7.—The President and party visited Pendleton at 5:10 o'clock this evening and had a grand reception. During the afternoon the Presidential party made short stops at Arlington and Umatilla Junction. Considerable enthusiasm was manifested by the residents of the former place. Umatilla, however, has the questionable distinction of being the only place yet visited that allowed the occasion to pass without recognition of any kind. A few people were assembled at the station and the President stepped out on the rear platform to greet them but they made no demonstration whatever. Soon after leaving this point the travelers were treated to a sand storm, which threatened at one time to result in a blockade but the wind fell slightly and the train maintained its schedule. Pendleton was in gala attire. The presence of about one hundred Indians, men and women, dressed in blankets and feathers, gave a picturesque coloring to the scene. They belonged to the Umatilla, Coyuse and Walla Walla tribes and were all well mounted. Their leader carried an American flag.

The American Medical Association.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The American Medical Association elected Dr. H. O. Mary of Boston President. Among the Vice Presidents is Dr. W. E. Taylor of California. The committee appointed to petition Congress to create a Cabinet officer to be called Secretary of Public Health, made a report setting forth reasons why such an officer should be appointed.

Will Build a Pavilion.

CANSON, May 7.—Grounds are being prepared to erect the new pavilion of the Ormsby County Agricultural District No. 1 in this city. Work on the main building will be commenced this week. Ten thousand dollars has been appropriated by the State.

Stabbing Affray.

SANSON, Cal., May 7.—Mose Glidden, foreman at the Deets mill, six miles from town, was stabbed in the left breast by Jack Copenhagen, an employee. Glidden is in a critical condition with slight hopes of recovery. The cause of the affray was a dispute about horses. Copenhagen was arrested.

Not Leprosy.

SANSON, Cal., May 7.—The reported cases of leprosy that caused so much excitement in this county have been investigated. To-day the Supervisors and county physician made a thorough examination of the cases and pronounced them not to be leprosy but severe cases of skin eruptions.

Concealed His Identity.

SAN DIEGO, May 7.—Deputy Marshal Spencer, who was on board the Itata when she sailed, was put off at Ballast Point and returned to this city last night, concealing his identity until to-day.

Nevada National Guard.

The following orders have been issued by the Governor: All members of the Governor's Staff are ordered to report, fully equipped and mounted, in Carson, at the Governor's office at 12:30 P. M. Saturday, May 30, 1891, for the purpose of participating in the ceremonies of Memorial Day and dedication of the Soldiers' Monument at Carson.

Companies of the N. N. G. will parade in their respective localities as escort to the G. A. R. or other organizations having in charge the exercises of Memorial Day.

District Court.

In the District Court, Judge Cheney presiding, William Johnson, indicted for burglary, (robbing a car) pleaded guilty of petit larceny, and was sentenced to five months imprisonment. Robert Quigley, who pleaded guilty to an indictment for burglary, was sentenced to three years in the State Prison, and the charge against Oscar Anderson for burglary was, on motion of the District Attorney, dismissed.

Nevada Press Association.

Notice is hereby given that there will be a meeting of the Nevada Press Association held at Reno, May 25th, 1891, for the purpose of electing delegates to the National Editorial Association (which meets at St. Paul, July 14th) and for the transaction of any and all other business pertaining to the profession in Nevada.

C. O. POWING, President.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited, and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring-time or, in fact, at any time, and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

A man who has practiced medicine for 40 years, ought to know salt from sugar; read what he says:

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 10, 1887. Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co.—Gentlemen:—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as I can Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions. Yours truly,

L. L. GORSUCH, M. D., Office, 215 Summit St.

We will give $100 for any case of catarrh that cannot be cured with Hall's Catarrh Cure. Taken internally.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced."

THE GOLD ARISTOCRACY.

Shall It Longer Govern the Country?
Asks Senator Stewart.

EDITOR POST: An international agreement for free coinage is neither necessary nor desirable. Prior to the combination of the United States and Europe to demonetize silver, each sovereign nation provided for its people such coin or such paper money as it deemed best suited to their wants. The coin was either gold or silver, or both. When sufficient metallic money could not be obtained, the deficiency was supplied with paper. Great Britain used gold; Germany, Austria, Holland, India and other Asiatic countries adhered to silver, while the Latin Union and the United States used both gold and silver as money. So long as each nation issued money of such material and in such quantities as best suited the wants of its people without international agreement, trusts or combinations, a parity in value existed between gold and silver, at about 15% of silver to one of gold. This illustrates the benefits of

ROME RULE IN FINANCE

As well as in local self-government. Commerce was free and untrammelled by the restraints of the gold combination or trust which was formed between the United States and Europe when silver was demonetized. The trust then formed controls the money of the world, molds financial legislation, compels the payment of obligations payable in either gold, silver or paper in gold alone, and produces a monetary famine which is exhausting the life-blood of civilization.

The gold monometallists insist that this trust shall continue until a more formidable combination can be entered into by international agreement. The proposed combination would deprive every sovereign nation of the freedom of action formerly enjoyed in supplying its people with money. If the exchange of the money of one country for the money of another were international commerce, some reason would exist for a unification of the money of all nations. But such commerce would be fruitless.

The American who sold $100 in England and received $100 in payment would gain nothing by the transaction. International commerce consists in the exchange of the products of one country for those of another. No country can produce all the commodities which it consumes, but every prosperous people produce a surplus of some commodities which can be exchanged for the products of other countries. The only use that money has in either foreign or domestic commerce is as a measure or counter to facilitate the interchange of property. Its only value is its power in exchange.

THE VALUE OF MONEY MEASURED.

The value of the money of any country is measured by its purchasing power in that country. It is valuable at home and abroad according to its power in exchange at home. All that is necessary for a foreigner, who is about to transact business in this country, to know concerning our money is what is its purchasing power in the United States. Bankers who deal in exchange, having a knowledge of the purchasing power of the money of every nation, readily reduce the money of one country to that of the other, and determine how much of the money of one country, whether that money be gold, silver or paper, will be required to equal in value a given quantity of the money of any other country. By such knowledge and determination of the relative value of money the rate of exchange is fixed and commercial balances adjusted.

Competition in exchange prevents extortion and provides every business man with the money of any country he may require. Why should a combination be formed to compel the United States to use gold alone for the pretended purpose of facilitating the export of our circulating medium? Self-preservation demands that we shall purchase no more foreign products than we can pay for by an exchange of our own surplus production. Any country which is compelled to export its money to buy foreign goods will soon come to grief. If we should continue to purchase foreign commodities to the same extent as we have done heretofore, and should pay for them in money and not in commodities, every dollar of the money of the United States would be exported in less than two years.

A slight balance of trade requiring the export of gold creates alarm. Countries whose circulating medium does not consist of a material which can be converted into the money of other countries are protected against the loss of their money by export. Why should they not have this protection? Why should we use gold for the sole purpose of affording foreigners an opportunity to export our money? If we can have plenty of money, our production of wealth will be enormous, and the balance of trade in our favor will be increased.

Why argue that it is necessary to have gold money for export to pay foreign balances when such balances are settled by a well-established system of exchange, and when no adverse balance of trade could possibly exist if our people were supplied with money. If importers buy more foreign goods than can be paid for in commodities, let foreign creditors wait for payment or refuse credit. Money is not a commodity for export, but an instrument of exchange to be used at home in the production of wealth.

FOREIGN TRADE REGULATED BY EXCHANGES.

While foreign trade, as before stated, is regulated by a system of exchanges, and not embarrassed by the particular kind of money used by different nations, domestic trade and commerce depend upon the volume of money at home. The best money for home consumption is that which will produce the most wealth and secure the greatest general prosperity. The false assumption that dear money is the best money sometimes deceives intelligent people; but such assumption will not bear investigation. The value of money depends upon the law of supply and demand. The less the supply, the demand remaining the same, the dearer each dollar or each unit of money will be.

If the quantity of money in this country were reduced to one-fourth of its present volume, the value of each dollar would be immensely increased, while the wages of labor and the price of property would be correspondingly reduced. No one will deny that such a result would be disastrous. The reduced volume of money might be good for the persons who possessed it, but it would be ruinous to the prosperity of the country. It would not be good money for the people, because by its possession the few would enslave the many.

When money is plenty wealth is rapidly produced, and the wants of the people are supplied. An adequate volume of money in any country produces the greatest wealth, and, measured by the good it performs, it is the best money. In other words, when there is an insufficient supply it is bad money, because it is an instrument of oppression and wrong; but when the supply is adequate it is good money, because it produces prosperity.

WHAT THE GOLD STANDARD MEANS.

Since silver was demonetized and gold regarded as the only money of redemption, the quantity of gold coin has not materially increased. Many statisticians think there is less gold used now as money in Europe and America than there was in 1873, and that the entire product of the mines has been employed for non-monetary purposes. However that may be, it must be admitted that there is not gold enough for use as money; that the vast fabric of credit in the commercial world depending upon gold for payment or redemption must be restricted and the volume of business reduced to correspond with the decreasing supply of gold. It cannot be denied that the gold standard means contraction, low prices, stagnation and want. The monometallists suggest no remedy for these evils, but insist that they must be endured and the people deprived of money because other commercial nations adhere to the gold standard. Why should we be compelled to do as Europe does? How are we benefited by remaining in the gold combination?

Our English cousins indulged in extravagant speculations in South America, and incurred gold obligations which were heavier than they could bear. The demand for gold upon the great house of the Barings shook the financial credit of the commercial world. The people of the United States, having been forced by the demonetization of silver into the gold combination with Europe, were compelled to sustain their English cousins by a liberal contribution of the gold reserves of this country, which were already inadequate for the business and credit of the United States. The gold partnership with Europe is unprofitable, and has been disastrous. Let it be dissolved; let the United States make a declaration of financial independence.

SILVER THE MONEY OF THE MASSES.

Silver has been used as money much longer than gold. It is now exclusively used for that purpose by at least three fourths of the people of the world. It has the same indestructible qualities as gold. It is more convenient for monetary uses, and, besides, it is the money of the people. Neither the people of Europe nor America were consulted when silver was demonetized. The governmental action which rejected the white metal as money in the United States and Europe was secured by strategy or fraud. The people of this country now demand the unconditional restoration of silver. Free coinage of silver may not accomplish all that is desired. It may not furnish sufficient money, but it will be a step in advance, and if the mines continue productive it may accomplish all that will be needed in supplying a circulating medium for an indefinite time.

THE SILVER ISSUE.

The money question is the most important subject now agitating the public mind. It cannot be obscured by sophistry or overshadowed by sentimental questions. Silver men on the gold standard are wolves in sheep's clothing. They are the worst gold monometallists. If we are to have the gold standard there is no use for silver. Paper is just as good and more convenient. We must have silver as money of redemption equally with gold. The basis of credit is not enlarged by using silver as credit money redeemable in gold. The people understand this question better than the politicians. It is idle for the gold monometallists to continue their efforts to deceive. The campaign of sophistry and misrepresentation, which they have inaugurated and which they call an educational campaign, will not make converts to gold monometallism. On the contrary, it will provoke discussion and hasten financial emancipation.

The gold standard impoverishes the masses and deprives them of an opportunity to acquire wealth. It contracts the money of the country in the hands of a few and denies to the people its use, without which wealth cannot be acquired. It makes money dealers the arbiters of the fortunes of the people and dictators of the Governmental action. It destroys the laudable ambition of youth and denies to the young and enterprising an opportunity to accumulate property. It denies the debtor the right to pay in the money of the contract, and fills every household with gloom and despair, over which the claim of the creditor casts its blighting shadow. It produces contraction, increasing the value of money and depreciating the value of property. Its dishonest exactions are destroying the independence of the people and sapping the foundation of civil liberty itself. Less contraction and more money will be the live issue in every campaign until it shall have been determined whether this country is to be governed by free men, living in their own homes, or by a gold aristocracy, residing in palaces in the great commercial centers.

WILLIAM M. STEWART.

Thomas H. Horn, who has been indicted for robbing the faro bank, and John C. Fraser of Denver, and Jos. E. Rogers of Toronto, Canada, and the Pinkerton men, who came here to assist Horn, left yesterday on the east-bound train. Horn gave bonds for his appearance here for trial.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE STATE of Nevada, in and for Washoe County. The State of Nevada sends to Mary C. Carroll, greeting, hereby requiring her to appear in an action commenced against her as defendant, by Wm. H. Carroll, as plaintiff, in the District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of day of service), if served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said District, and in all other cases forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you a continuing to the prayer of said complaint. The action is brought to recover a judgment and decree of divorce, forever dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you, the said Mary C. Carroll, and the said William H. Carroll, and decreeing that there is no community property to be adjudicated and that the property which he is now owner is his own separate property.

The said action is brought on the ground of desertion of him on your part for a period of more than one year last past prior to the commencement of this action. All of which will more fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court, at Reno, in said county, and to which you are especially referred. And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand at Reno, this 23rd day of March, A. D. 1891.

H. A. WALDO,

Attorney for Plaintiff.

Reno, April 21, 1891.

LEAVING SICK BEHIND.

Stanley's Column Are Obligated to Desert
Their Dying Comrades.
Early next morning Stanley started off with his company, promising to clear a path as well as he could in order to enable us to carry the boat sections through the thick undergrowth. Stairs, Parke and I then made a careful examination of the men and loads, and found that we should be obliged to leave fifty-five men and eighty-one loads behind. Many of the men were so cowed and hopeless that they wished only to be left to die peacefully where they were.

But any man who was at all able to crawl along we passed as fit to travel, and those fifty-six men we left were nearly all in the last stage of starvation and sickness. At any rate, we thought that their chances of getting food would be better if they came with us, and nothing could be gained by remaining where they were.

We had great difficulty in getting the men off with the loads, and it was past midday before the last of the caravan filed out of what is now known as Nelson's starvation camp. I find the following words in my journal that morning:

"It is a truly terrible position for Nelson to be left in; he has food only for three days, and will have to exist on what he can pick up in the shape of fungi or roots. Stairs has left him a fish hook and line, and it is possible he may get a few small fish, but the river is so rapid and full of bowlders that he has but a slight chance of catching anything.

"Meantime we are going on with an exhausted and starving column to try and find food in a trackless wilderness. Nelson is now so crippled from ulcers that he cannot creep far from camp, and will have to depend entirely upon what his two boys can manage to bring him.

"We got off about two o'clock, and sadly said goodbye to poor old Nelson, for his position is very precarious, and our chances of relieving him small; he has worked with us in good fellowship all these months, and now we are practically abandoning him."—A. J. Mounteney Jepson in Scribner's.

Old and Young Great Men.
Great as have been some men who died young, who knows how much greater they would have been had their lives been prolonged. Might not Marlowe have rivaled Shakespeare? Yet possibly Byron had already given us his best, and Shelley and Keats might not have surpassed their early efforts.

Had the author of "Festus" died at 23 there would have been lamentation as over Keats, but Bailey has lived half a century longer without producing a second poem. Tasso, though he lived twenty years after "Jerusalem Delivered," never equaled that epic, written at 31.

Still there are men whose longevity has certainly stood for much. Michael Angelo showed astonishing precocity, but he owes to his eighty-nine years his great renown as painter, sculptor and sonneteer. Voltaire's fame, again, rests on the entirety of his writings, not on any single work, and the literary dictator with which age invested him. Cut off twenty years of his life, and his fame would perceptibly shrink. Goethe, Emerson, Carlyle, Longfellow, Tennyson, Hugo, Dumas—all had the advantage of fullness of years, so as to be judged by bulk as well as quality. Humboldt, too, owed to his ninety years a portion of his reputation.

The true comparison would obviously be between works produced at the same age, or between men dying at about the same age, but it is much easier to test achievement than capacity. Perhaps the best books (in posse) have never been written, and we often feel that the men were greater than their works. Who knows, moreover, what geniuses have died in childhood?—Atlantic Monthly.

Old Butter.
It is a matter of wonderment to many what becomes of the tons upon tons of dairy butter piled up year after year in the wholesale grocery stores and commission houses of our cities, and which the average American would not allow on his table. "The poorer the butter the further it goes," said a large butter dealer of this city, as he packed rolls and prints of various colors and sizes in a sugar barrel lined with butter cloths. "That expresses it in more ways than one. Good butter always finds a ready market here at home; it never goes begging for buyers at any time of the year, but packing grade goes to the end of the earth. The contents of this barrel will go to South America."

"Not just as it is?"
"No; it will undergo manipulation. The firm to whom this is to be shipped melt down this grade of butter and pack it in glass jars. By the time it reaches a South American port it is of about the same consistency as olive oil. The South Americans use it on their bread as we use butter. A large proportion of packing stock shipped from the northwest goes ultimately to European countries."—North West Trade.

Maine No Longer the Pine Tree State.
One of the pioneer lumbermen on the Penobscot was Mr. John Trickey, still living in Bangor, at the age of 85 years. He went there on foot with a pack on his back and only $1.50 in his pocket in 1820. Today he is one of Bangor's wealthy citizens. "Times have changed," as they say, since Mr. Trickey began his operations. Maine was really the "Pine Tree State" then. In eight years Mr. Trickey cut 33,000,000 feet of pine on land that now constitutes the towns of Carmel, Konduskeag and Levant, where hardly a pine is to be seen. At that time there were no roads, and all the provisions were taken up the river in boats, special crews being employed for that purpose.—Leviston Journal.

Needed an Airing.
Old Johnning—When I was a young fellow like you, Sam, I won't so fond of venturing my opinions as you are, sah!

Young Yallery—Huh! I don't wonder you venturing 'em now. They am tansy enough, sah!—Judge.

Bargain Counter Repartee.

An early morning customer in a big retail dry goods shop is apt to hear some quaint talk among the clerks, who amuse themselves by chaffing one another while waiting for the active trade of the day to begin. In an up town shop the other morning a customer heard the following dialogue:
"Say, fanny?" from the ribbon counter.
"What is it, ribbons?" from the fan counter.
"Why is it that you are so unpopular with the ladies?"
"Give it up."
"Because in cold weather they don't fan—see, you?"
"Say, ribbons, why is your trade like that of a granger?"
"Why is it?"
"Because so much of it is gros grain."
—New York Times.

In a Cemetery.
On one of the tombstones you see a couple of hands clasped, and underneath the following inscription:
"Gustave T—, I wait for thee! 1860."
"Eulalia T—, nee B—, Here I am! 1869."

The disconsolate widow was in no great hurry, evidently.—H. Messagero.
